BRYAN BEFORE ECONOMIC CLUB.

A Frank Talk with Andrew Carnegie, Lyman J. Gage, President Baker, President of the First National Bank and Other New York Financiers.

Now there is another safeguard. I would like to see a law that would make it a criminal offense for any bank official to become a gambler upon the stock market. Don't want until in debt to or committed suicide, but make it criminal to begin. Save the man's life, and his home and his family by protecting him from the temptation.

I read a few years ago, that a bank official that had gone against him and shot himself and another official who was associated with him in the bank came in and found him dead, and knowing that he had shared in the dead man's speculation he shot himself and fell dead across the body of the other man.

In Iowa, not long ago, I was told that within a radius of, I think it was one hundred miles, ten bankers had committed suicide as the result of speculation. It would be a mercy to these men to protect them from this temptation. The man who has in his keeping the money of others ought to be protected, as far as law can protect him, from the temptation to gamble. Am I not right?

Voices: Yes, you are. Mr. Bryan. Again I am right. (Applause.) Now I am afraid that I have talked over my time. (Cries of "go on, go on.") When you say, "go on," I am reminded of a fellow down in Kentucky who was making a speech. He had to leave on a certain train. When he saw the time was near for his train to depart, he said: "My train will go in a moment now," and they said, "go on, go on." And he talked until his train had gone. Finally he stopped and said: "You see, gentlemen, that I have been persuaded by your entreaties to miss my train." They said, "Why, we told you to go on." (Laughter and applause.) I am not sure what my may mean by "go on." (Laughter.)

Now I have said what I have upon this question because I believe it should be presented. It is not necessary to wait until the election is over to find out what ought to be done. Take a plan that appeals to the common sense of the average man and you need not be afraid to present it before the people. The people of this country are the most intelligent people in the world. They want to do what is right. Some of you misunderstand our people. (Laughter.) You think we are not alert.

The man who procures the wrong odor is the best friend of human rights. (Applause.) And all that we are trying to do is appeal to the hearts and consciences and judgment of these men. You have said that we are arraying class against class. It is false.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Drake returned from Santa Fe, N. M. Sunday night and will remain.

There will be the One Ticket.

On Tuesday evening in the I. O. O. F. Auditorium a citizens' mass convention was held at which a vote of thanks to the grand jury and expression of the will of all was nominated. The convention was called as a protest against the acts of certain public officials who designed to continue the carrying on of partisan politics in city affairs. Without friction or any considerable difference of opinion. E. J. Matthews was nominated for Mayor, Geo. Olinger for the council for the short term, and E. E. Welborn, John Miller and Clarence Nelson for the regular two year term.

The following resolutions were introduced by H. E. Welborn and were adopted practically unanimously, proving that the great body and mass of the people are opposed to the carriage of party politics as such. Without these resolutions there is no question that whatever the people say will go for this time and it is practically certain that a new board will re-establish the power of electing the clerk and treasurer. The resolutions follow:

RESOLVED, That it is the sense of this mass convention, that the popular bodies are requested to comply with any official ballot or the voters be not permitted to write in their choice for City Clerk and Treasurer, and be null and void.

RESOLVED, That we request our candidates for Mayor and council in so far as they may be elected, to express and concur in the decision of the people on that point, by writing such, to each of said officials the people who may receive the largest vote for said positions.

Mr. Vincent being called on made some remarks in which he quite vigorously stated it as his opinion that partisan politics should not be allowed to enter into our city affairs. He expressed doubts that an observer from the east could be made to understand the city affairs.

The ticket was named the Paonia ticket and the meeting adjourned.

On the following evening the republican test for Mayor was decided. The net result being that they departed from their homes satisfied that it was useless to nominate against the excellent ticket named by the non-partisan folks the evening before. Judge Baxter thought it not worth while to endorse the ticket put up by the others and in this view he was unanimous as supported by the entire convention consisting of Chief Oliver, Judge Tuthill, Judge Moulton and Judge Chamberlain.

This peace and harmony prevails and partisanship will not figure in this city campaign.
